I REMEMBER

Circa Late 1920's-1940

By Elizabeth Goldfinch Singleton

Some short time ago I read that middle age chronologically begins at age 35. Upon recovering from the shock of realizing that I had "been there" far longer than I cared to admit, my mind's eye began to peer backward in an effort to find out where the years could possibly have gone. Having been born in and having spent practically all of these years in Conway, I determined that before even these middle years recede into the past, now would be the time to preserve my very personal record of our town during those years during the late twenties and through the thirties. At random, then these are run-of-the-mill recollections of a very ordinary child born in 1924, who spent happy years growing up in Conway--memories of people, events, and places interwoven as the floodgates open.

A child's earliest memories are, of course, of family; so mine revolve around my beloved parents, brother, sisters, and assorted Goldfinch and Stalvey kin. My paternal grandmother having been one of twenty-one children, there is a vast network of cousins roaming the countryside. Naturally I saw some more than others; and the ones of the preceding generation who come to mind are Grandmother Goldfinch, Uncle Will and Aunt Ruth Goldfinch, Aunt Grace Goldfinch, Aunt Maye and Uncle Harry McInvaill, Aunt Sadie and Uncle Ed Walsh, Aunt Tilla Sessions, Aunt Georgia and Uncle Newton Sweet, Uncle Kelly and Aunt Bess Stalvey--and assorted cousins of the first, second, and third degrees. There were huge Isaiah Stalvey reunions at the beach every June, and a history should properly be written of these gatherings. The parties each January 18 when we celebrated Grandma Goldfinch's birthday will never be forgotten by those of us who rarely missed one. Although I was not fortunate enough to have a grandfather, I claimed two grandmothers, as Mrs. L. J. Pepper, my maternal grandmother, lived in our home before my birth until her death in 1941. A native North Carolinian--of which she was extremely proud--she spent her married life in Southport; so my roots are a mixture of the two Carolinas, with northern blood mixed in on both sides of the family.

I imagine that my childhood years were typical of most Southern small-town girls of that era--carefree, cared for, and totally unconscious that a great depression was enveloping the country and most of the world. My one memory in that context is hearing the song, "Happy Days Are Here Again", during the time of the first Roosevelt election and of having father explain its significance, arousing in me a life-long interest in things historical and political.

Thomas Wolfe wrote, "You can't go home again"; but invariably upon entering the halls of the "grammar school" (I just do remember its being Burroughs School), I feel the years roll back; and I do go home again! There is that same odor--a mixture of chalk dust, pencil lead, notebook paper--defying description; and the physical changes are so slight until I all but see Mrs. Leethard Bryan, Miss Nina Collins, Miss Mercedes Massey, Mrs. Marjory Langston, Aunt Grace Goldfinch, Mr. G. W. McCown, Mr. L. N. Clark, Miss Isabelle Plowden, Miss Marjorie Huntley, Mrs. Francis Holliday, Mrs. N. P. Jenerette, Mrs. L. T. Truett, Miss Ernestine Little, Mrs. Bessie Burroughs (remember the lunchroom then--serving cinnamon buns and milk?), Mrs. John Cartrette, Miss Josie Hardwick--among many more. The rickety wooden steps on the east end are long gone, the cafeteria has crowded out our play yard of years past, the trains don't come by at recess (in fact, the tracks are gone!); but nostalgia never ceases to envelop me in waves when I enter that building! Who can forget when "chapel" was the first item of business every day--and when we sang "Dixie" at the tops of our voices? School was dismissed at 2:05, so we went home for dinner--cafeterias hadn't been dreamed of then. Paul was the janitor and had been forever, or so it seems; and a better friend we never had. A reliable seventh grader rang the bell (no electronic master-mind saw to that); and each fall when the circus came to town, the scholars went en masse to Main Street to see the sights. The only holidays ever heard of were two days at Thanksgiving, the usual Christmas complement, and two days in the spring for teachers' meeting". Any photograph of the high school during those years will attest to the fact that no pupils, and precious few faculty members, drove cars to school. Junior and Senior class plays were annual major events of the year, with the unwritten law being that cast members were excused from classes on the day of the big production. Until about 1940, football games were Friday afternoon events, and the bleachers of that era would today be a shame and disgrace. Baseball games were played in the late twenties and early thirties on a field somewhere west of what is now Twelfth Avenue--all of that presently thickly populated area then known simply to us as Burroughs Field. Mr. C. B. Seaborn was our school superintendent, and Mr. S. L. Lemmon the high school principal. They were as much a part of our lives as our families and friends, and we who share memories of both can exchange anecdotes for hours on end!

Organized activity for the small fry was unheard of. Before regimentation set in and television was still an unknown quantity, we busied ourselves walking or riding bikes wherever we went (car pools didn't exist), skating (those who haven't "snaked" down Lakeside Drive haven't lived!), playing tennis, and in some fashion managing to get through the afternoons during the school year and the long, lazy days of summer.

There were so many folk who were part and parcel of my childhood days. So many of my elders who were friends, relatives, neighbors, merchants, and acquaintances had a great impact on my growing up! There are far too many to list completely or accurately but these do come to mind: "Granny Scarborough, Mrs. McKeithen and the Hymans, the Sessions family, the W. B. Chestnuts, the Littles, Dr. and Mrs. Epps, Mrs. Lutie Holliday, Col. D. A. and Mrs. Essie Spivey, Mrs. Laura Collins, the Friersons, the Scoggins, Dr. Henry Scarborough and his family, the Greens, the Nortons, the Rutledges, Dr. Joe and Mrs. Gussie Dusenbury, the Charlie Sniders, Mr. Frank and Mrs. Iola Burroughs, the Godfreys, Mr. Don and Mrs. Georgia Burroughs, the H. H. Woodward family, Col. Buck, Mrs. Buck, and Mrs. Badger (I can still see those picture hats each Sunday in church!), Mr. S. P. and Mrs. Fan Hawes, Mrs. Daisy Collins, the Marlowes, the John Gores, Dr. Archie and Dr. Paul Sasser, the John Coles family, the Stilleys, the Magraths, the B. F. Singleton family, all the Andersen families, the Jesse Woodwards, Mrs. Rowena Collins, the L. K. Wards, Mr. A. B. Causey, Mr. A. C. and Mrs. Emma Thompson, the Frank Thompsons, the Jim and John Longs, Mr. Charlie and Mrs. Miriam Scarborough, the McDermotts, Mrs. Sallie Burroughs, Mrs. Julia Causey, the Bruce and Sherwood Nyes, the M. C. Andersons, the Simons, the Herzbergs, the Mose and Max Banners, the Elliotts-----and the list is in reality endless. Then, of course, there was an endless chain of preachers and their families--the Danners, the Brearleys, Bensons, Knights, Dibbles, Dugans, Derricks, Beckhams----and the suppressed excitement involved in "pounding the preacher").

To go "downtown" in those days meant Cox-Lundy (now Jerry Cox), the Right Market, Banner Brothers, Herzbergs 5 and 10 (remember the Osh-Kosh-B'gosh overall sign?), the fruit stand and fish market on Belk's old site, Conway Hardware on Main, Nick's Lunch, the Kingston Hotel (also served as the bus station), McCoy's Market, Barrett's Hardware, the "old" People's Bank and the "only" Conway National, Lee's Chevrolet, Tyson's Cleaners, the New York Cafe, the beauty parlor on the second floor of the Spivey Building, Kingston Furniture Co., the Pastime Theater, the Conway Bargain House, Hendrick's Market, Jenkins and Richardson's Stables, (remember when it burned?), Gaines Barber Shop, Todd's Store, the Conway Lumber Co., the Hotel Grace----. Most of these have long since disappeared from our sight and vocabulary; but their memory lingers on. Practically everybody, incidentally, went downtown on Saturday nights since the stores stayed open until 9:00 and some even later. The post office in those days was on Laurel adjoining the alley between Laurel and Main; and how excited we were when the "new one" was built! Twice as exciting, however, was the celebration when the new bridge over the Waccamaw to Red Hill and then to the beach was opened. And who can forget Farmers' Day festivals each tobacco season--with the big street square dances the main attraction?

Those were the days when the mill whistles served as our alarm clocks; and when the power plant whistle blew, we all knew which lineman was due to report. Semingly scarcely a night went by that the lights didn't flicker ominously; and the advent of an electrical storm almost routinely meant a power failure of some duration.

Swimming pools were not a part of our childhood except for the wooden one in the Sniders' yard where many were privileged to enjoy a dip. Then when the Nortons built theirs, we all had to go gaze upon this wonder of wonders. Swimming meant either going to the Dynamite on late summer afternoons or piling into the car replete with water wings and old inner tubes for a quick trip to the ocean. And to visit the rides at the pavilion was a real treat! Myrtle Beach then meant Seaside Inn, the Yacht Club, the fabulous "Million Dollar Hotel", Spivey's Pavilion and the Swash, Macklen's Store, and the old wooden "Big Pavilion" with the boardwalk extending north and south for many blocks. A beach vacation for the majority of us not fortunate enough to own a cottage involved renting one for a week or two and invariably having a cast-off stove, no hot water, a huge table and benches for eating, discarded iron beds, no closet space, and usually a "pass-through" for food from kitchen to dining area. To go in August to Spivey's an added attraction was to watch Mr. Joe Sarkis's fishermen bring in the mullet-laden nets. Who can forget the suspense of seeing what each haul brought?

One very early vague memory is watching Laurel Street being paved. Another is listening to a radio for the first time; and never will I forget the first "talkie" I saw. It was a war movie and I was utterly terrified. The night the old Pastime Theater burned is etched in my memory; and many a Saturday afternoon I spent there for the price of a dime to see the cowboy movie two or three times plus a comedy and the "serial", always full of deliciously frightening scenes.

The second Gully Store--the one by the now extinct railroad tracks between seventh and ninth avenues--was regularly visited by our neighborhood, with a small bag of Hershey's silver bells and a grape cluster sucker being real delicacies.

We in my generation were only vaguely aware of our black neighbors--truly our only contact being with the cooks and nurses in our homes, the delivery boys from the stores, and the residents we saw when we rode through "The Hill" or those we happened to pass on the streets. I recall no animosity or prejudice per se. The simple fact is that we lived in separate worlds, and occasionally the two intertwined. There are many I remember from my early days--some gone, others still with us. Among them were Lizzie Wineglass, Caesar Books, Sarah Singletary, James and Annette King, John and Mariah McCoy, Jeff and Hannah Hemingway, Mary Nichols, Everson and Azalee Marshall, Ethel Murray, Bessie Murray (Gallishaw), Ida Murray (Hughes), Henry Moore--these wonderful people and many more were a part of my childhood. Truly life would have been poorer without them. But how truly ignorant we who grew up in the thirties were of the lives of our own black contemporaries! Whittemore and Conway High might just as well have been fifty miles apart; and the only time I ever visited the "colored school" was as a first grader taken by Miss Nina Collins to that rickety ancient structure that pre-dated the present Conway Junior High School building--the purpose of the visit to demonstrate reading teaching techniques to black teachers of the area. Notwithstanding, there was and is, I think, real affection between and among us; and many a helping hand has been offered and accepted by all of us in all walks of life.

One thing all of us had in common was the fact that we were cold in winter and hot in summer, for that was simply the way it was supposed to be in those days before heated homes and air-conditioning came on the scene en masse. Fires were built in the early mornings, and we all shivered and shook while trying to get dressed. Hand and electric fans provided the only means of getting cool in hot weather. But we accepted these facts of life; and only in recent past have we worried about thermostats, fuel shortages, and the like. And, are there any flower pits left--where the ferns and geraniums hibernated in winter?

Christmases and other holiday seasons haven't really changed too much, except for more time spent giving and going to parties. There have always been the suppressed excitement, the pungent odor of Yule greens, the turkey and trimmings, fireworks, church pageants and cantatas, and the unbelievable waiting. All of these things are with us and never grow old, even though we do!

In retrospect, surely we didn't rush around and dash hither and yon thirty to forty years past as we do in the mid-seventies! Cars didn't whiz by endlessly, airplane travel was a rarity, living was somehow slower-paced and more relaxed, or maybe it just seemed that way. Yes, those were the days! We grew up when times were indeed hard, only most of us really didn't know it!

THE KING HOME

The home site was conveyed to Calvin King before the Civil War. The picture of William H. King and Ella Frances Causey King was taken in the early 1900's.

Ella Frances Causey King taught the first school in the Evergreen community in the 1800's. She had attended the old academy in Conway. The land of several hundred acres was conveyed to Calvin King by W. H. Parker. Calvin King died in the Civil War at the Fall of Vicksburg and is buried in the City Cemetery in Vicksburg. He never saw his son, William H. King.

The King Home

Mother & Father of Mr. Hal King
Frances Ella Causey King - William Henry King

William H. King is the father of W. Hal King, who lives in the old home. William H. King and Ella F. King lived in the old home since 1883.

William Hal King and Maude Lupo King have the following children:

Dr. William L. King, Professor at the St. John's University in New York. He is an advisor of some 20 where there are 500 professions. He was a Fulbright scholar in Paris, France and also studied in Spain and Italy. Dr. King received his Master's Degree from the University of Paris and Middlebury College in Vermont. He received his P.H.D. from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He also studied in Cuba.

Minnie Ella King Shelly (Mrs. Burn Shelly). Minnie Ella teaches in Mullins, S. C. She is a graduate of Winthrop College where she served as a counselor. When in Conway High School, she was president of the JHA for Horry County.

Robert L. (Bobby) King. Bobby graduated from Furman University and attended Union Seminary for two years where he received his Master's Degree. He studied in Paris for one year and did summer studies in Cologne, Germany. He is at present choirmaster and organist at the Presbyterian Church in Burlington, N. C. He has given many concerts in the large cities in the eastern United States, including Conway, S. C., and in Paris, France.

The children of William H. and Ella Frances Causey King were:

Rilla King - 1884-1887

Macie King (Mrs. A. A. Burroughs) - 1886-1971

Lillie King, a graduate nurse - 1888-

Paul A. King - 1891-1962

Winston King - 1902

Lena King (W. Dovell) - 1900-

Clinton King - 1905-1948

Leo Charles King - 1908-1965

Pearl King - 1894-1903

The shoes in the picture are held by Charles King. The shoes which are factory made of red kid were worn by William H. King in 1862. Charles is the great grandson of Calvin King and the grandson of William H. King. He is the son of Leo Charles and Annie Smith King.

Annie Smith taught in the Evergreen School with the King's in 1929, 1930 and 1931. She attended Converse College and taught music in the Evergreen School. She played for the operetta "Princess' Chrysanthemum."

Charles is a graduate of the Citadel and is employed at the International Paper Company in Georgetown as a civil engineer. His father worked here before his death.

In the picture of the old home, the background is the old garage from Evergreen School that was converted into a third grade school room when an extra teacher was needed. W. Hal King bought the building when the old school was sold and Minnie Ella and Bobby were taught in this room in third grade. The teachers who used this room were Miss Essie Marsh, Mrs. Albert Long, Mrs. Lewellyn Carter, Geraldine Burroughs, Nell Pinner, Mrs. Nina Lee Skipper and Mrs. Cora Thomas Moore. Maude and Hal King still live in the old home and have for the last 52 years. They still work as substitute teachers in several schools in the county.

The old home has been renovated from time to time. It was first ceiled then lathed and plastered. Then beaverboard was used, and last vinyl was put on the walls. The old wainscoting has never been removed.

Maude L. King taught the first grade in Evergreen School for 33 years. Then she taught nine years in Jamestown. W. Hal King taught and was principal of Evergreen for 35 years. Then he was principal of Horry Elementary School for six years.

CHILDHOOD LIFE IN GREEN SEA TOWNSHIP

By

Mrs. J. O. Cartrette

I've been a little unhappy that my "hometown" community has had little mention in our Independent Republic Quarterly magazine. Hence, I shall procrastinate no longer. It has little meaning, I'm sure, to our society members in comparison as it has to me.

After leaving Green Sea upon finishing high school, attending Winthrop College for 2 summers in preparation to teaching, and residing in Dayton, Ohio, Washington, D.C., Atlanta, Georgia, Greenville and Conway, South Carolina, I have to say that "to me, Green Sea is still 'The Garden Spot of the World.'" It is a fine prosperous, educated, well-living Baptist community of friendship, lovely homes, and exceptionally good farmland.

I had a childhood farm life, "a joy to behold." Our farm seemed to have had all the joys a little one could wish for. How nature can provide so much! Resources were in abundance for us children.

Our parents, William Franklin Lupo and Minnie A. Smith, became husband and wife in the year 1890. They descended from Marion County, where they were both born. Coming to Horry County they farmed with Mr. and Mrs. John P. Durham, Sr. for some years before buying their own farm.

I have a brain full of fond memories. Of course, by the pictures included, one can see that there was tragedy in the family, as I lost two little sisters and my mother by the time I was fourteen.

The farm life to us was a full life. We knew what was expected of us, and we obliged to the fullest. It was much easier and more pleasant for us to say, "Yes, sir (or mam), I did" rather than say "No, but I will." That was not in our language.

As our farm was from one and one-half to two miles north of the Green Sea post office, school house, and church, we felt we had it all.

Papa, a leading citizen of the community, was a frequent visitor to the county seat, serving on jury duty, meeting with school boards, and his church conferences.

A close friend of the late Mr. Hoyt McMillan, Sr. and Mr. John McDermont of the Conway area, he frequently had them in our home. Mr. McDermont's grave and marker is in the Green Sea Cemetery.

I still adore driving up to my old homegrounds, even though our original home, church and school building were burned. They have been replaced by new, prettier and more modern buildings. It is still my early childhood playgrounds, and I shall always love the community of Green Sea.

I can spend long hours walking over the cemetery grounds, reading inscriptions of long-deceased loved ones and friends.

Our farm No. 1 seemed to have had what most all children wish for.

- a. A boiling spring with ice cold water.
- b. Blackberry patches with thumb-size berries.
- c. Wild violet beds with violets of 6-inch stems.
- d. Sweetgum trees with profuse "wads" of gum.

e. And, lastly, the old mill pond.

Few (if any) of us in those days possessed swim suits. Not one swim did we miss because of that! We always found something to swim in, and it was there that I learned to swim. Boys, young men from the area would "go swimming" during their 12 to 2 rest period from farm work. If we girls could get there first (and we always did), it was all ours! Upon our departure, the boys would take their turn. It was never a doubt to us that they "swam in the rough" so to speak, as we never saw them with extra clothing.

OUR FATHER

William Franklin Lupo (Cause of death - Apoplexy)

OUR MOTHER

(Cause of death - Pneumonia)

A Little Sister - Alpha Mae Lupo. "A Little Musician". Dark Auburn Curly Hair. (Cause of death - Mastoid Surgery - Charleston, S. C.).

A Little Sister - Evelyn J. Lupo. "A Real Little Singer". (Cause of death - Brights Disease).

I have a brother, Herbert, who is a few years my senior. Somehow, even though we've had many laughs together, we couldn't quite see eye-to-eye on things. I have to admit, however, at the age of 78, he is still rather handsome and seemingly somewhat more understanding of my concerns. Perhaps it took my returning home to convince him that I had grown up, settled down, loved a good time, harming no one and at no expense to anyone but myself. At least, our visits to each other's homes are more frequent than ever, and quite enjoyable in our later days.

There were ten of us children. We had a large two-story house---ten rooms, some with two double beds to the room so we never wanted for lack of space for sleeping friends, relatives or acquaintances.

Papa never refused the "traveling salesmen" who just happened to reach our house about sundown. They came along quite frequently with their horse-drawn buggies to request lodging for the night. They were never refused; they were never charged; and they never left hungry, they or their horses.

We children, until this day, hang on with a laugh to some of the sayings of those people. For instance, occasionally it would be man and wife. It was a pet saying of the Mrs. of "No, thank you, but my hubby loves it."

How we children did love for the salesmen, after supper, to open up their satchels. The show was ours, looking at their samples of socks, extracts, gingham and shambrs. All school clothes in those days were homemade. Only the Sunday ones were "store bought." We were more interested in the school togs, for it was there we chose and exchanged valentines. Never have I been able to forget the first bought one or the first mailed one to my friend. "Look in the mirror, and you will see, The only one, in the world for me!"

I think back to us children rambling here and there on the farm. Woods and ponds were included as well. Finding shallow ponds with small trees in the center was our specialty. Climbing trees, swinging to and fro was our delight. Being one of the smaller ones, by the time I reached the top, the older ones were back down and walking away. Of course, that would scare me half-to-death, imagining myself getting left in the woods all alone. I cannot put into words exactly what I called them, neither can I tell you where I learned the word. I do not know!

Another time, following the older ones around, climbing fence, etc., I fell, hurting myself badly. Of course I cried. My sisters, Mrs. Hal King and Mrs. Essie Sommerlyn say that I told them where it hurt. They have never forgotten how to laugh over that.

When a little ugly word slipped, somehow it was always a long way from Mama or Papa. However, whoever of the others heard it, held the guilty party "under command" for not less than a year.

Once when my mother's cut glass butter dish disappeared, we never would acknowledge just where it was. That would have shortened the term of our every wish being granted by the Destroyer. Once as we played and became angry, I yelled out, "I'm gonna tell Mama you broke the butter dish." That did it! Mama overheard! She called us inside immediately and gave us a talking (kindly), but that was punishment enough.

My younger brother, Leamon, known over the county as Buck, is now the largest one, and quite a handsome fellow. We all get such a laugh of his scare once when he was about nine years of age. He had gone to bed early, and Papa had gone about a hundred yards to see a neighbor. Buck began hearing noises. The quieter he listened, the louder the noise. He suddenly jumped from the bed, ran down the road to Papa, his little white split-back union suit flying open as he ran. Investigating the noise, they found a bumble bee whizzing and buzzing around in a bucket on the back porch.

One more incident and I shall refrain from childhood play. My younger sister (now Mrs. Walter Graham of Green Sea) and I were sent out to pick peas. At the end of the row where we played most of our limited time away, we saw this inviting tree that looked so easy to climb. As I watched, my sister went out on a limb, swinging with "all fours" monkey style. Crack went the limb, and down she came, limb and all into the underbrush. It was no light fall.

Breathlessly she weakly called to me, "Ea - Ea, my back's broke." The scare was greater than the damage, I fear to say. However, had it been otherwise, we doubtlessly would have reported it in due time. For along with our articulate training, we learned how to protect our well being, as well.

All had left home except us three younger children and Dad. We were naturally growing up by this time, and we all had good times together.

Many a girl would tell me that they wished they could have as good a time as we did. Don't let your mind wonder if we were disciplined or not. We were! It was understood that Dad was never to have to wonder where we were, or with whom. With that understanding we had a wonderful home life together.

Playing the old push-pedal organ and singing hymns on Sunday morning before leaving for Sunday School "sorta" became a habit with us. We arose early and never entered Sunday School at the last moment.

I suppose Dad's last days were about as pleasant as any widower's. There were two sisters, who were widows, living near, one on each side of us. Dad became quite sporty with his little "sawed-off mustache". Being a straight standing man of six feet one inch tall, his head covered with black wavy hair, he could be quite striking when he chose to be.

As he grew older, however, and we children came home on late Sunday afternoons, I can still see him sitting on his front porch reading his Bible.

Dad passed away at the age of 61 after 12 years of taking care of us three children alone. I'm quite sure that he had many lonely days and hours without a real companion.

His many friends, however, spoke of what a jolly man he was. When his obituary article appeared in the paper, saying "He was a man who kept the home fires burning," truly I could and did say with love in my heart, "We three children have had a little bit of heaven here on earth."

CHANDLER-WILCOX WEDDING

Conway, Dec. 3 -- Of interest to many friends throughout the State, was the marriage on Thanksgiving Day, of Miss Genevieve Willcox, of Murrell's Inlet, and Mr. Thomas Mobley Chandler, of Kingstree.

Rarely has there been a more perfect day for a wedding, and never before have the old live oak trees at the Hermitage looked down upon a fairer scene, than that they witnessed on Thursday, at high noon, Miss Genevieve Wilcox became the bride of Mr. Thomas Chandler.

The marriage took place upon the spacious lawn, beneath the spreading branches of a live oak tree, which has doubtless stood for centuries, and never was there a more beautiful and impressive ceremony.

The strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March were a signal to the friends and relatives gathered in groups about the lawn, and all faces were turned toward the spacious veranda, where a dainty figure in white, bearing in her arms a palm branch, appeared.

This was Miss Mildred Collins, of Conway, and as she descended the broad steps, and advanced down the shell walk, from the opposite side of the lawn, Mr. Phillip Allston Willcox of Florence, came to meet her. At the center of the broad circle the young couple met, turned and together crossed the lawn to the old oak, and took their places to await the coming of the bride.

A short space behind this couple and observing the same order of proceedings, came the next bridesmaid and groomsman, Miss Mary Willcox, of Marion, with Mr. Will McCullough, of Kingstree. Following this couple were Miss Norma Rose, of Marion, with Mr. David Scott, of Kingstree. They were followed by Miss Leila Johnson, of Marion, and Mr. Snowden, of Kingstree.

Then came the dames of honor, Mrs. J. C. Gasque, of Columbia, handsome in black lace over satin, and Mrs. C. A. Willcox, Jr., of Marion, lovely in a dress of cream colored lace and satin.

Following them in sweet dignity, was the maid of honor, Miss Kate Howard Cross, of Marion, in white crepe de chine. Just behind her, and immediately preceeding the bride, came demure little Miss Genevieve Willcox of Centenary, niece and namesake of the bride, bearing the ring in the heart of a beautiful long stemmed white carnation.

There seemed a softer, sweeter tone in the notes of the organ which under the wonderfully musical touch of the bride's mother, seemed to fill the air with a throbbing melody of love, and as though called by these tender love notes, the bride came out from the old Colonial doorway of her home, crossed the veranda and descended the steps upon the arm of her elder brother, Dr. A. M. Willcox, of Centenary. In the sweet simplicity of her white satin gown and veil, surely no bride was ever lovelier, and as she was met and joined by the handsome groom, who with his best man, Mr. Dukes, of Kingstree, awaited her coming the very sun seeming to shine with a more radiant glow.

The beautiful ring ceremony was impressively performed by Mr. Humphries of the Methodist conference, brother-in-law of the groom.

After the ceremony the guests were served a wedding dinner in the spacious dining rooms of the beautiful old home, which were beautifully decorated with pines and palms and lighted with candles.

The bride's table at which were seated the immediate bridal party, had for its centerpiece the bride's bouquet, while the five other tables were made beautiful with a wealth of fruits and autumn decorations.

Only the immediate families and closest friends of the bride and groom were present at the ceremony, about fifty guests being entertained.

The bride is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Willcox, of Murrell's Inlet, and is loved and admired by a host of friends for her attractive personality. Mr. Chandler is a well known member of a prominent family in Williamsburg County, and a veteran of the World War.

NOTE: Mrs. Chandler discussed her wedding with a member of the IRQ staff, and added these interesting bits of information:

A friend had promised to come to Murrell's Inlet to furnish the wedding music, but at the last moment had to cancel her plans. The musician's mother was seriously ill. This is why, contrary to custom, the bride's mother played the wedding music.

In order to finish a "wedding breakfast" for the large gathering, six skilled servants prepared the feast and attended the guests. Adequate china, of modest quality, was borrowed from an establishment in Georgetown. It was sent up the Waccamaw by boat, then transported by dusty road to The Hermitage. Relatives brought enough flat silver to accomodate several guests. Each also brought a white damask tablecloth. When the festivities were over, the silver was wrapped in the damask and taken home by the owners. Other interesting material on this Murrell's Inlet family may be found in THE INDEPENDENT REPUBLIC QUARTERLY, Vol. 4, No. 3. A favorite expression of the Willcox Family was, "We live in Georgetown County, but we graze in Horry."

JANUARY MEETING

By Annette E. Reesor

The Horry County Historical Society had the rare and delightful experience of holding its first 1975 meeting in a renovated 125 year old home. The Bell-Marsh-Pinson house is among the buildings included in HORRY COUNTY SURVEY OF HISTORIC PLACES, published by the Waccamaw Regional Planning and Development Council in 1973.

With reverence for the house built for Samuel Bell in 1850, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Pinson have restored it wherever possible, and added modern conveniences when necessary. The exterior has been stained to copy the soft silver luster of antique wood. The original front and back doors remain where they were placed by shipbuilders from Maine. During the work of restoration, Dr. Pinson discovered two rooms in what was thought to be an attic. He bought the stairs from the now demolished Beaty-Norton house (same age) and had them installed so as to give access to a second story. The attic yielded a roll of unused wallpaper, matching that selected by the late Mrs. Essie Marsh. The Pinsons used it in restoring one of the front rooms.

Dr. and Mrs. Pinson inherited many interesting pieces of furniture and bric-a-brac from their respective families and have bought others. With extraordinary good taste, these are arranged so as to give their home qualities of beauty, antiquity and usefulness. Among the items that attracted the attention of the Society members were: a handmade grandfather clock, a large Victorian bed, a marble-topped vanity dresser, and many crocheted and quilted bed coverings.

Mrs. Eileen F. Guilloz of Myrtle Beach displayed some of the antique dolls she has restored. Of special interest was a rare French doll with a contoured kid body.

January 13 was a dreary, rainy evening, but a large group from many parts of Horry were in attendance. This is a probable indication of the genuine love on antiquities by those who have joined the Horry County Historical Society. After a candle-lit tour of the house, there was a lively discussion by those present of reminiscences of the home and its former occupants. Some referred to it as "the old Methodist parsonage", or a room as "Miss Essie's dining room", or "the grape arbor that grew on the site before the house was moved", etc. Others told stories they had learned from their parents and grandparents.

Several items of business were taken up, and they are included in the minutes of the Society. Mr. Gene Anderson of Myrtle Beach accepted the gavel from out-going president Dr. William Long, who expressed his appreciation for the cooperation given him during his two terms of office. Special acknowledgement was made to Mr. John Cartrette, editor-in-chief, and the staff of THE INDEPENDENT REPUBLIC QUARTERLY.

Mr. Osby Cartrette was elected vice president. Other officers are: secretary, Mrs. B. G. Langly; treasurer, Mr. F. A. Green; Directors: Mrs. Eunice Thomas, Mrs. Catherine Lewis, and Miss Ernestine Little.

The relaxed, informal atmosphere of this meeting led to suggestions for other meetings at historic sites, and called meetings in different sections of the county as projects similar to the popular tours.

After the meeting Dr. and Mrs. Pinson and their six year old daughter, Lee Ann, served light refreshments.

Dear Mr. Cartrette:

Dr. Robert D. Bass, 720 Art Street, Marion, S. C. 29571, has very kindly sent me a copy of his speech which paid tribute to General Francis Marion at the Hall of Fame ceremonies held at the Myrtle Beach Convention Center on February 17, 1975, at which time General Marion and Dr. William S. Hall of Columbia were inducted.

Dr. Bass was professor of English at Erskine College and wrote the book SWAMP FOX which was published by Sandlapper Press, Inc., in 1972.

You probably are aware of the fact that our historical society was one of the nominators of Marion for the Hall of Fame this year.

Am enclosing speech for use in our quarterly if you have room and think it appropriate.

Huguenots, and Scotch Irish Presbyterians, gave him a small corps that baffled the officers and troops of the proud British Empire. As recognition, on January 1, 1781, Governor Rutledge commissioned Colonel Marion a brigadier general of militia.

In his campaign against the Cherokees, General Marion had become engrossed in the strategy and tactics of the Indians. He had seen their warriors live on parched corn and branch water, sleep on the ground, ride their ponies for long distances, and strike with devastating fury. So now he began emulating the strategy and tactics of the Cherokees. He divided his followers into parties of ten or twelve soldiers and set them raiding the Loyalists, sustaining the patriots, and playing hide and seek with the troops of Great Britain. And when the raids and fighting were over, he gathered his men together around the cabin of William Goddard on Snow's Island. And he thus developed modern guerrilla warfare, the only kind mankind will ever have now that we have developed the hydrogen bomb.

Moving swiftly from his lair on Snow's Island, he drove Major Robert McLeroth and the 64th Regiment from Williamsburg. He sent Colonel Benjamin Tynes and his Loyalist regiment squandering from Black River. He fought Colonel John Watson and his Provincial Light Infantry to a draw and forced them back to Camden. He then captured Fort Watson. He harassed the South Carolina Rangers, a Provincial regiment recruited along Lynches River by Major John Harrison, and cut them up so badly that the British reduced Harrison to captain and attached him and his troop of Rangers to Colonel Thomas Fraser's South Carolina Royalists.

Although he had tried to exterminate Harrison's Rangers, the Swamp Fox could be forgiving. Twice he defeated Major Micajah Ganey and his Loyalists from the country along Little Pee Dee River, but he accepted Ganey's suit for peace and allowed him and his followers to serve six months duty for rehabilitation in Marion's Brigade. After the Revolution when the Legislature of South Carolina was debating the penalties for Loyalism, he fought against punishment. While the senate was arguing confiscation and amercing the property of the Loyalists, he was a guest at the dinner table of Governor John Mathews. As the conversation grew heated, the little brigadier raised his glass and proposed a toast: 'Damnation to confiscation!'

By nature Marion was thus forgiving and humane. And yet as we have seen and can corroborate from many instances in his orders, orderly books, battle reports, and personal letters, under the duress of war he often showed an iron hand. He shot pickets, retaliated savagery with equal savagery, failed to honor flags of truce, and knowingly violated international law. He could courtmartial a loyal friend and yet he could forgive and defend the Loyalists. Such paradoxical qualities endeared him to the ragged band who followed him through the swamps of Pee Dee and Santee without pay, without adequate clothing, often without ammunition, or hope of reward.

And as he lay dying he comforted his sobbing wife by saying: "My dear, do not weep for me. I am not afraid to die, for, thank God, I can lay my hand on my heart and say that since I came to man's estate, I have never intentionally done wrong to any man."

And so, as today we place the name of Francis Marion in the South Carolina Hall of Fame, we can only repeat the eloquent eulogy inscribed on his tomb by our forebearers: "History will record his worth, rising generations embalm his memory as one of the most distinguished patriots and heroes of the American Revolution.

.... "To another gifts of Healing"....

I Corinthians 12:9

Dr. and Mrs. Peter Carlisle Kelly, have resided on Ninth Avenue for quite a number of years. We, the Gibb A. Doziers, III, have lived next door to them since 1956. They are marvelous neighbors, even though we see very little of each other since we go about our duties at Conway Junior High School and they busy themselves at the Kelly Clinic, at the Conway Hospital and whatever else they do; nevertheless, we care about each other to inquire if someone becomes ill or passes from one of the families.

Dr. Kelly has tended the sick in Horry County long enough for someone to take note.

He has been the only black physician ministering to the needs of the black race for a long, long time. Long hours at the drug store, visits to the hospital, (where patients who have just been admitted, worry about when they will be released), house calls all hours of the day and night in earlier days. Serving people who paid their bills promptly, those who paid later, those who paid eventually, those who didn't have means to pay and those who chose never to pay. Dr. Kelly's services have not been limited to his racial origin; he has served and still serves the sick of Horry County. He is a pleasant gentleman with a little unknown melody that he chooses to hum; I wonder if it has made him happy over the years or does he hope to cheer his patients?

Dr. Kelly has actively participated in the following organizations: Masons, Consistory, Shriners, Elks, Progressive Democratic Party as well as the Democratic Party of South Carolina, American Rehabilitation Association, Omega Psi Phi, Xi Delta Mu, Conway Civic Association, American Thoracic Society, South Carolina Medical Association, American Medical Association, American Academy of Family Practice and as a Preceptor for the Medex Training Program at the Medical University of South Carolina & Charleston Medical Center, Brookgreen Society and Atheneum Society.

Dr. Kelly was the founder of the following organizations: the Conway Civic Association, the Voter Education Project of Horry County and the Horry County Progressive Democratic Party. These organizations served very beneficial purposes during the early years when blacks were struggling to gain equal status in the political arena. During these years Dr. Kelly was active, influential and vocal in his role as a leader for his people. Dr. Kelly has served the medical profession for 36 years since 1939 in Horry County. His daily schedule has always been tight and rigid; however, whenever, he finds the time he thoroughly enjoys attending medical meetings with his wife, Juanita, reading, extensively, especially medical journals, swimming, tennis, hunting and fishing. He says he is happiest when he is examining a patient to see what can be done to cure him. His life goal has been specializing in family practice and trying to encourage more blacks to enter the medical field of medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, nursing and medical technology. Demetra, the only daughter made her father happy by entering the medical field and serves at the Loris Community Hospital. Dr. Kelly's Clinic has been located at 601 Highway 378 for many years. Dr. Kelly would advise young people in his own words "Study faithfully and work hard until you are age 50." "Leave some markers to show you were born." (From a biographical sketch requested and secured from Dr. Kelly, Feb. 4, 1970) Dr. Kelly's philosophy of life is "All things in Moderation". He would like to see most in Horry County, Blacks making good in every phase of community life. His Father and Mother have been the greatest influence in his life.

Your sustenance and birthright are.*

MORE ON CONWAY STREET NAMES

4701 Cedar Avenue
Wilmington, N. C.
Jan. 8, 1974

The Independent Republic Quarterly,
Conway, S. C.

Dear Sirs:

I received my copy of the October 1974 Quarterly and enjoyed it very much.

There is one small error in the article on the origin of Streets in Conway. On page 26 Melson Street is said to be named for Rufus Melson. Rufus Melson was the oldest son of William Putnam Melson who came to Conway as a young man. He was born in 1821 in Eastern North Carolina, and was a seaman. He married the daughter of Joseph J. Richwood and Mary Jane Bruton, Mary Frances Richwood, and they had a family of 7 children, and founded the Melson Plantation (now containing Jamestown) and lived in the old house which burned about 1921 known as "Sonwood". It was William Putnam Melson for whom this street was named.

Also there was a street, part of the old log railroad, the part which ran through my mother's property, and which she gave to the City of Conway to be used as a street and was to be named Rollinson Street.

Also there was a street according to my maps named Ronald Street. This was on the west side of the highway to Georgetown. There is probably also one named Rufus, as stated. Ronald is my son who was a baby when my father, William, Henry Rollinson, established this section of the Melson property.

I would like to add another citizen from other lands to Conway's past. My grandfather, Robert Allen Rollinson was born in England, 8/28/1838, Lincolnshire. He and family came to Conway in 1899 to grow strawberries. His daughter Bessie married Dr. J. K. Stalvey and their descendants are, of course, well known in Conway. Mrs. Stalvey lives on Beaty Street, in Conway.

Yours Truly,
s/Gladys Rollinson Davis

We appreciate Mrs. Davis' interest and contributions to the Society. We would like to have a picture of the Rollinson or Melson home in Conway. We would like to have more contributions from our readers like this.
EDITOR.

LAKESIDE CEMETERY

Lakeside Cemetery, which nestles against Kingston Lake between Ninth Avenue and Lakewood Drive in Conway, is more than a century old. George Burroughs and John Benjamin Mayo, both infants, were buried there in 1869. These are the oldest tombstones which are legible, though there are at least two old wooden markers which are now weathered past any inscriptions which they might have once had.

In 1903 Hal L. Buck was intendant (mayor) of Conway. According to the minutes for November 9 of that year, "Intendant reported he had seen Mrs. Addie Burroughs as to the Cemetery and she is willing to donate to the town 6 acres, and make conveyance to town for same as soon as same can be surveyed, provided town pay for rearranging fences and opening street to cemetery. Intendant instructed to take deed on terms named and that Mr. F. A. Burroughs be requested to have fencing done and render bill to town". The arrangements were completed and on June 13, 1904, an ordinance was passed making it the only place within the corporate limits in which bodies could be interred. The ordinance referred to it as the "new cemetery for white persons" and records show that separate negotiations were going on for a burial ground for Negroes. The adoption of this ordinance effectively closed the churchyards of Conway to future burials, though some few exceptions have occurred.

Lots in Lakeside sold for as little as $5.00 and after its acquisition by the town records of those owning them were maintained by the Town Clerk. A map of the cemetery and lists of the owners of record of the plots are available in the City Hall. No lots have been sold since 1962 by the town, according to Miss Delores Beverly, present City Clerk, but information about those which are for sale by the owners is available. Miss Beverly has been most helpful in making available information included above.

In 1969 students in classes taught by Mrs. Laura Quattlebaum Jordan undertook to list the graves in Lakeside Cemetery. Using their work as a base, Ernestine Little, Annette Reesor and Catherine Lewis spent many sunny winter Sunday afternoons in 1974-75 checking the information and bringing the catalog up to date.

THE LIBRARY HAS IT

George Gause of Brownsville, Texas, has recently made a number of gifts to Horry County Memorial Library. Among them is a thoroughgoing guide for the researcher in family history: Building an American Pedigree by Norman Edgar Wright (Brigham Young U., 1974). It should be consulted by anyone who intends to embark on a serious search for his ancestors.

Another fascinating help to the researcher is The Handwriting of American Records for a Period of 300 Years (Everton, 1973). Many a puzzle in reading and transcribing handwritten documents may be solved through the information and illustrations provided here. This volume was also a gift from Mr. Gause.

The Library has recently acquired the Civil War diary of Emma LeConte. Entitled When the World Ended (Earl Schenck Miers, ed.; Oxford University Press, 1957), it describes vividly the occupation and destruction of Columbia by the troops of General Sherman as seen by a teenage girl.

Richard Irving Manning and the Progressive Movement in South Carolina by Robert Milton Burts (U. South Carolina, 1974) is one of the few biographical and political studies of a South Carolina governor available. Manning, the 62nd governor of the state, served two terms, 1915-1918, and, because of the excesses of his predecessor, Coleman Livingston Blease, was seen as a reformer. It is curious and instructive to learn that many of the problems to which he addressed his considerable talents are still not fully resolved today. His was a wartime and watershed administration which "marked South Carolina's effort to catch up with currents of progress and social action coursing strongly throughout the nation and in many Southern states."

300th ANNIVERSARY MEDALS AVAILABLE

A donation of several HORRY COUNTY TRICENTENNIAL souvenir medals was made to the Historical Society by one of its members. They are on sale for $1.00 plus .25 cents each for postage and handling. In time, they may become valuable collector's items. Order them, as you would back issues of THE IRQ from:
